If you would like to run the Next.js application locally follow the simple steps below.

GitHub Repository

Local development

1

Using the link above clone the repository to your local machine.

2

Using your preferred terminal navigate to the root folder of the project.

3

Install the dependencies. From the terminal run > npm install

4

Run the application. From the terminal run > npm run dev

http://localhost:3000

All going well the application should be running on localhost:3000 and the content should look similar to this site.

We now need to login or create an account in Headlesshost so we can create our own content.

Headlesshost account setup

We are now going to login or create a Headlesshost account. Once logged in we can create a new content site and connect the Next.js template.
